

PASAR TANI, PASAR MALAM, PASAR RAYA

This week we learned about pasar, which generally means market. We learned pasar raya last semester, which means supermarket. You are probably familiar with several 'pasar raya' in Malaysia by now since we have studied several 'iklan pasar raya' from Malaysia such as Giant, TESCO and Carrefour. In case you are wondering, there are no Walmart or Target in Malaysia.

Apart from pasar raya, we learned that there are pasar tani in Malaysia and America. Pasar tani is basically farmer's market, where you can find fresh produce from local farmers or merchants. You will find pasar tani in the day time.

As you can see in the pictures above, there are many similarities shared by Pasar Tani in the two countries.

Di pasar tani ada ramai orang. Pasar tani ada banyak gerai. Ada gerai yang jual sayur, daging, bunga, makanan, buah-buahan, ikan dan lain-lain. Pasar tani beroperasi pada waktu pagi atau petang. Dua pasar tani itu ada kanopi.

There are many people at the farmer's market. The farmer's market has many stalls which sell vegetables, meat, flowers, food, fruits, fish and others. Farmer's markets operate in the morning or afternoon. The two farmer's markets have canopies.

Kosa kata:

1. gerai: stall/ stalls
2. lain-lain- others
3. operasi: operate (in business)
4. kanopi: canopy
5. buah-buahan- fruits

Dialog:

Tiffany: Darryl suka makan buah apa?

What fruit do you like to eat?

Darryl: Saya suka makan oren. Tiffany suka buah apa? I like to eat oranges. What fruit do you like?

Tiffany: Saya suka makan pisang.

I like to eat bananas.
